Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. ## Dan Stuart's Arrival and Carson Selected as the Battle Ground.

CARSON, February 11, 1897.
Carson was agog this morning in anticipation of Stuart's arrival, the great event having been heralded by wire yesterday afternoon. Several of the advance guard left for Reno last night accompanied by some of the insiders here to welcome the great man who is to exert his magical influence and make Carson as well as Nevada rich in a day, according to the opinions of some.

Stuart arrived and Carson street was alive with hurrying people to catch a glimpse of their saviour. The depot was crowded, and as the great man (in size) stepped from the train he was immediately surrounded, but his body guard with Livingston and Sam Davis in the lead hurried him to the Arlington. The crowd followed, but remained out doors gazing through the glass doors in respectful admiration.

Sam Davis walked down the street having a little more sporty swagger than usual and looking up under the corner of his deer with an expression on the small part of his face that was exposed and the hump on the back of his neck indicated that the following was passing through his mind: "Say, d'ye get onto me style, I'm no film fanny, but went to Reno and made a scoop, and landed here with de gang see, and am in with the swag."

For a short time following the arrival of the notables the question could be heard on every side, "well, has the location been settled?" All anxiety, however, was soon put at rest, for Stuart after a short consultation with Wheelock announced his decision that Carson would be the chosen spot. Later the $15,000 gymnasium or permanent athletic pavilion so much talked of, so report goes, degenerated into an ordinary circus tent to be put up on some vacant lot or the race track for the occasion.

Corbett's company is expected here next week, and Fitzsimmons' athletic combination a few days later, from the prominence of the principals, take in all of the loose sheekles in the three towns of Reno, Carson and Virginia which will go a good way toward paying the license and expense of the fight.

The income tax bill vetoed by the late Governor Jones at the last session was the main feature in the Assembly to-day. The bill was read and a spirited debate followed in favor of and against the bill. Numerous surprises were expressed by various members at the stand taken by others and the debate became very warm, when the previous question was called and carried. The roll was then called on the question whether the veto of the Governor should be sustained and was carried by 21 votes to 9. It was amusing to see one member after another who had voted against the bill immediately after the vote was announced, jump to his feet and endeavor to explain why he had opposed the bill. All kinds of reasons, such as the constitutionality, hardship, political pounce, were given and in some instances the efforts to explain were painful in the extreme, and Mr. Norcross in order to help many out of an apparent difficulty, arose and suggested a vote of thanks to the Republicans and Democrats in the Assembly for the anxiety manifested for the Silver party and the fostering care they exhibited in its interest.

No doubt other and more definite reasons for the opposition to the bill could have been given had some of the opponents to the measure so desired.

The arrival of Stuart called the attention and usual interest of the public away from the Legislature to-day and the two branches were rather dull as far as an audience was concerned. The Senate held a short session, but the Assembly put in its regular four hours.

A public meeting is called for tomorrow evening to arrange for the accommodation of the great number expected in Carson on March 17th.

Met at 11 A. M., President McCone in the Chair.

Senate bill 15, Summerfield of Washoe—Amendatory of act concerning legal conveyances. Passed.

Opinions of Fugitts as to the Result of the Coming Contest in This State.

Prize fighters, referees and sporting writers are busy these days giving their opinions of the big mill. Steve O'Donnell when asked what he thought of the bout, replied that it would go to the speedier man, but whether Fitz or Corbett is the speedier he would not say.

John L. Sullivan thinks Corbett will win. His opinion follows:

"I think Corbett will defeat Fitzsimmons because he is the better man. Most sporting men think it will be a short fight. I do not. Both men have a great deal at stake, and, in my opinion, neither will take any chances of defeat by a random blow in a makeup. I think they will use up several rounds trying to draw each other out. I expect to see a slow fight. Now, as to the relative merits of the two men, I should say that Corbett is much superior to Fitzsimmons in ring generalship. He is shifter on his feet, and will thus be able to get away from Fitzsimmons' dangerous rushes. Then too, he has a good eye, keeps cool, and knows just when and where to strike. He doesn't waste any time in punching air. I have had a pretty good chance to size Corbett up, and I pick him out as the winner. I don't underestimate Fitzsimmons' ability. I know he is a game fighter and hard bitter, and a clever man in every way, but I think Corbett outclasses him."

WHAT MAHER THINKS.

Peter Maher who has gone down before Fitzsimmons, thinks Corbett will whip the lanky Australian, but won't have an easy time doing it.

Choyneki says, "I believe Corbett will win sure. Accidents, of course, are always liable to happen, but I can see no chance for an accident in this fight. Corbett is too careful for that. From my experience in the ring with both men, I am convinced that Fitzsimmons is Corbett's inferior in speed and generalship. Upon these advantages I base my opinion that the New Zealander will be beaten. Besides, Corbett is the stronger man, and that counts for something. I have frequently heard men say that Corbett is not a hitter. I know he can punch hard enough to answer all purposes. He can knock Fitzsimmons out with his left hand if he lands, and I do not insist upon a swinging blow to bring this about."

At the Opera House.

In the routine of plays that have been given by the Carrie Clarke-Ward Company, none have given better satisfaction than the one last evening, entitled "49." The audience was kept in a state of excitement from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Carrie Clarke-Ward as "Carotte," was at her best and kept the house in good humor throughout the play. Carl Berch as old "49" was as good as could be. Mr. Berch is a finished actor, and whatever he attempts to do he does well. Miss Lockwood and Miss Griffin sustained their parts in a finished manner. The entire cast was good. Much more could be said for the play, but our space is restricted.

This evening a five-act comedy, entitled "Underground," will be presented.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for every season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alternative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often overtaken long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

CARBON THE BATTLE GROUND.

Sq Says Dan Stuart—Corbett Arrives in San Francisco.

CARSON, Nev., February 11.—Dan Stuart this morning selected Carson for the coming Fitzsimmons-Corbett fight.

Stuart bases his reasons for selecting Carson on the ground that the accommodations are ample and that the people worked hard to secure the passage of the glove contest bill and were therefore entitled to whatever benefits might come from the big crowd following the fight. There was great rejoicing when the news was given out, although it has always been supposed that this would be the result in the end. Stuart says there will be several other attractions at the same time, or rather during that week in the way of pugilistic encounters and the world's championship wing shooting contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 11.—James J. Corbett, the pugilist, arrived here on the Eastern overland to-day to spend a few days with his father's family before going into training in Nevada.

His appearance suggests a much better physical condition than on the occasion of his last sojourn here, when he was practically knocked out by Sharkey. He is the picture of vigor and healthful manhood and says he was never in such good condition before. Corbett says he will train at Slaw's springs, leaving for that place next Monday. He said he was much pleased at the selection of Carson for the scene of the fight, when informed by an Associated Press reporter that Stuart had chosen that place for the battle ground.

BOXING EXHIBITION.

Corbett and McVey, His Sparring Partner, to Give an Exhibition Tuesday Night.

Renovites will have a chance to judge for themselves on next Tuesday evening, February 15th, what James J. Corbett is made of. He is going to give an exhibition of sparring with John McVey on that evening at the Opera House. Other interesting boxing events have also been arranged, so an excellent program can be looked for. Nothing is more exciting than to see two men equally matched in a spirited boxing contest, the art of self-defense is a noble one and should be encouraged at all times. People go mad over football and criticize boxing as brutal, but it is safe to say if they saw the latter their views would be changed.

A Correction to "Sufferer."

The JOURNAL is under the impression that an injustice has been done Mr. Pinniger through an article headed "A Suggestion," and signed "Sufferer," which appeared in this paper a few mornings ago.

Mr. Gilbert who has been in the employ of Mr. Pinniger for a number of years, has always slept in the rear of the store until very recently, but owing to the impurities that are always present in a drug store, his health has been failing, and he found it absolutely necessary to find other sleeping apartments, and he as well as Mr. Pinniger, always being considerate of those who might be in need of his assistance, secured the front corner room upstairs to the Elite building, situated directly across the street on the corner, which is almost as convenient as if he were sleeping in the store itself, where he can be found at any hour of the night, by anyone who might find it necessary to call upon him.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

The first annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held this evening. The members will take supper together at the Association rooms at 6 o'clock, after which there will be an election of officers. Although the organization of the association a year ago was looked upon as an experiment, it has grown and succeeded beyond even the hopes of its friends and may now be regarded as one of the permanent institutions of our town.

Private Secretaryship Is No Joke.

"Whoever succeeds me will have his hands full," said Private Secretary Thurber the other morning. "I have no idea who it will be, but no matter, he will have to be a hustler to find himself equal to the emergency. It is an enormous belief that the position of private secretary to a president is a sham. The very reverse is the fact. You have no idea how much trouble and annoyance I have here. Representatives, senators, office seekers and officials in the departments, all wanting to see the president at one and the same time. It takes diplomacy, I tell you, to run this office. The private secretary to a president of the United States is an avil, on which 70,000,000 of people are continually pounding."

Secretary Thurber was asked what he has in view after the close of his official career.

"I'll go back to the law," he replied. "My post with the firm of Don M. Dickinson of Detroit has been held open for me, and when I leave here on March 4 next I will resume business at the old stand."—New York Sun.

Oliver Schreiner's Opinion of Cecil Rhodes.

This is what Oliver Schreiner thinks of Cecil Rhodes: "He is Napoleon over again, but Napoleon in a financial, industrial and political world. He has all Napoleon's greatness, not a little of Napoleon's pettiness, and he will fill some day, overwhelmed, as was Napoleon, by the corruption of his own tools. What Napoleon did with steel Cecil does with gold. Around him there is a court of creatures who only live to minister to his will, but who would turn and read him tomorrow if he were tripped up by fate. As Napoleon thought Providence was always on the side of the heavy battalions, so Cecil is convinced there is no god so omnipotent as that of the full purse."

Galusha Grov's Eyesight.

Ex-Speaker of the House and Representative Galusha A. Grov of Pennsylvania is 78 years old, but he writes without glasses as readily as a boy of 18. The other day he was writing in the secretary's office of the house some autograph passes to the reserved gallery, and some one complimented him on his good sight. "It is because I began to wear glasses as soon as I needed them," said the veteran Yankee, for he is a native of Connecticut. "I have at home the ones I wore when I was much younger, and they still fit me. I use them soetimes for reading the newspapers."—Washington Post.
